

Walk with Your Students: Navigating Learning Diverse Classrooms

7/23 Tue
10:00-12:00

This workshop will help participants re-design a learning activity or classroom assessment for supporting students with international background. In order to figure out how to help both international and local students get better learning experience, we will ask participants to work in small groups and try to design their own lessons.

Western University

Hokkaido University FD program

CENTER FOR TEACHING AND LEARNING
HOKKAIDO UNIVERSITY

Application / Contact us

<https://ctl.high.hokudai.ac.jp/>

Approaches to Internationalization in Higher Education

7/26 Fri
10:00-12:00

The goal of this session is to share learning activities and strategies, for interculturalizing the curriculum and helping students to prepare and succeed in an international environment. During the workshop, participants will (1) discover new strategies to promote intercultural skills, and (2) fulfill international skills for their curricula.

How do I know whether my students are learning?

Getting feedback about learning and teaching during your course

7/26 Fri
13:30-15:30

This session focuses on the variety of classroom assessment techniques, which can be used to check whether students are on the right track. They are very useful tools for not only the instructors of lecture course, but also for instructors of active learning approaches. Our lectures will help you to learn how to use these in-class feedback strategies to improve students' learning experience.