

Teaching in English Workshop

(Basic course)

2020 3.9 mon 10:00-12:00

With an internationalization of the education and growing number of international students, the number of classes conducted in English is increasing. This is an introductory workshop for teachers who will or may conduct classes in English soon. Teaching culturally diverse students, the same way you used in Japanese classes might not work. We will focus on what things should the teachers consider while having a class in English.

Instructor

Dr. Mazur Michal
Assistant Professor
IAHE, Hokkaido University

Application / Contact us

<https://ctl.high.hokudai.ac.jp/>

CENTER FOR TEACHING AND LEARNING
HOKKAIDO UNIVERSITY

Facing on globalization of Japanese higher education, it is common to have people with different cultural, religious backgrounds in classrooms. This workshop is intended for faculty members who want to build a better relationship with international peers, want to collaborate more effectively and avoid some common cultural misunderstandings. By participating in this workshop, you will acquire new skills for different communication styles, learn how to be more culturally sensitive and adaptive, how to deal with students' common problems and sensitive issues.

2020 3.9 mon 13:00-15:00

Workshop on Intercultural Communication in Educational and Research activities